To Rev. Samuel May Jr.

No.32

Weymouth, Mass.. The writer describes her personal feelings about anti-Slavery work. Thinks the debts of the Mass. Anti-Slavery Society should be paid off after the dissolution of the Society. Suggests that Wendell Phillips and his friends might decide to take over the Society, particularly if all its debts were paid. Criticizes the Anti-Slavery Standard. Tells of her opposition to certain recent actions of the Mass. A. S. Society. Thinks Mrs. Abby Foster takes advantage of Rev. May's highmindedness. Doesn't think Rev. May should raise money for Mrs. Foster and her friends to spend.

To Francis Jackson, Garrison

No.23

Weymouth, Mass., In reply to a card from the addressee, the writer gives the dates of the publication of "Right and Wrong in Boston." There were three numbers or parts. No.1 is "a concise statement of events previous & subsequent to the annual meeting of the Boston Female Anti-Slavery Society" with the motto from Fénelon; "Si je vous parle fortement, n'en soyez pas étonné; c'est que la vérité est libre et forte."

Explains the delayed publication date, due to the reluctance of the book-sellers. When the addressee finds a copy of this number, the writer can "thrust in a few notes-not needed at the time; but now, by years, necessary." Explains the background of No.1; Society, and Church all being in bonds of slavery, it seemed "needful to begin first with Soclety ... & this was the aim of No.1." Recollects the misgivings of Mr. Amos Augustus, Phelps and Mary S. Parker, and the final adoption of the publication plan by the Boston Female Anti-Slavery Society. Harriet Martineau "passed through the skirts of the mob-unaware of its nature at the time" c1835. "The members of Dr. Channing's congregation were the mob." Tells an anecdote of a Mr. Rhodes, who kept a hat-store near the scene of the mob, saying that in thirty years he had never seen so many good hats before.

"As to initials...why should I care? No reader of the X.ia.n Register is likely to know them except yourself". A Mrs.Miller, who was preparing a monograph of Harriet Martineau, sent to the writer for materials. The writer wished her success, "as for the good of the world there could not be too many lives of so grand a character & so noble a woman." Some parts of Mrs.Miller's little book are very good and then, "when she interviewed James Martineau & Ellen Higginson (the dear sister of Harriet) obtained a quantity of poison flies with which she has spoiled her ointment." J.Martineau and Mrs.Miller "together set themselves to deny to Harriet's autobiography any claim to credit or notice - but six editions of a 6 dollar book are proof enough of its goodness." James Martineau was Harriet's idol too, "till he compelled her to know him as the bad man & family tyrant he is ..." Mr..Thomas Martineau, coexecutor with the writer, must not be blamed for her exposure of James Martineau. Mrs. Miller did not know Harriet M. She is James M.'s tool and "women all see that she does not know enough to defend herself from being used to her own discredit."

To Deborah Weston

Worcester, Mass.. The writer will write at length when she gets to Boston and is now giving only a few items on the Anti-Slavery Convention.. Assumes that D. knows how the cause stood in Boston, "how rampant was clerical abolitionism -how James G. Birney was out in the Philanthropist against Garrison, his eyes evidently full of Channing's dust." Refers to various papers; the Evangelist denouncing, the Emancipator dumb, the Coloured American refusing to publish the doings of the colored people in Boston. John Gulliver, Charles Fitch, Joseph H. Towne went up from Boston "to get the ground," but the Lynn folks got a head start. Tells of her journey and her breeding companions. They joined the Samuel Philbricks and John Greenleaf Whittier, who "is somewhat bedeviled with the Presbyterian demon of New York." Tells how Amos Augustus Phelps, "ploughing in the neighborhood," wrote Whittier to approach a circle of friends to meet him (Phelps) at Amesbury, which Whittier did, but "dodged himself and went to Haverill." Phelps, however, pursued him and brought him back. The train was loaded with abolitionists and, at the depot was a long line of anxious faces "looking out to see who had come with inexpressible earnestness." James Trask, Woodbury staid away, and "Maria, says nothing can equal his spite." The holding of the county convention at the same time cramps them for room, but the day has been successful.. "Dear dear Amos Phelps, -no fox could manage better." The faithful looker-on, chipper and happy but oh the Forlorn & distressed look of those miserable men Charles, Fitch & Joseph H., Towne. Deacons Gulliver brazens it out ...". The morning was occupied with business, but in the afternoon "the bear showed himself in opposition to a resolution that it was a minister's duty to pray & preach." The Rev. Luther, Lee and others proposed an amendment, which was indignantly rejected, and the resolution was adopted. In the evening a Texas meeting, with excellent speeches by Brown of Lynn, Bronson, Amasa Walker, Amos Phelps. Joshua Leavitt spoke, and was followed by Garrison, who was loudly applauded. The writer feels that G. is safe from the attacks of his enemies.

Explains regretfully that there are no working anti-slavery women in Worcester. Many former good abolitionists believe that the world will soon be destroyed and effort is therefore unnecessary.

"At home". S. May thinks that a full Committee meeting can be held on the day after Thanksgiving. The writer has faith and begs the addressee to help her inspire the Executive Committee, especially Mr. May, who is "all despondency." The Bazaar should be made as profitable as in good commercial times. Mr. May now understands the writer "and feels, I trust, that I am the general agent of the American Society ... and that he is not the Ex. Com." The Western campaign has been a grand success.

Worcester, (Mass.). The writer says that a county society to aid the Boston Anti-Slavery fair has been proposed. Wants a certificate of agency and some compensation for her services. "The people are kindly disposed to benevolent objects, whenever certain Individuals will lead the way, form plans, etc." Says she will attend the conventions for W.W.Brown and would then organize the County for Anti-Slavery purposes.

Worcester, Mass.. The writer calls attention to the New York field, where "the lines between Old Organization and Liberty Party and the Leaguers are not well drawn." Does not consider Joseph C. Hathaway qualified for the work there. S. S. Foster suggests Parker Pillsbury. The writer is troubled about F. Douglass's starting a paper in Cleveland. Believes that two Disunion papers cannot be sustained in the West, and is afraid that Douglass's paper will supplant the Anti-Slavery Bugle. The writer says confidentially that she has always feared Douglass, that the "manner of his proceeding in this matter was not quite honorable." He consulted none of the more active Western Abolitionists except Samuel Brooke. The Worcester, (Mass.). Informs the addressee that Stephen S. Foster may be relied on for the evening of December 30 at the (Faneuil?) Hall. The writer regrets that she will not be able to attend because her baby is teething. Hopes to wean the child at nine months and then be able to accompany her husband in his labors as early as March. Longs to be in New York "breaking up the bridges between the true and the false." Fears that Frederick Douglass' paper "will confirm the half and half state of things in New York." Learns that (Joseph C.) Hathaway is to be his partner. "You know his tendencies..."

Worcester, (Mass.). The writer asks the addressee's advice about ways of initiating the fair in Worcester. While the addressee thinks that $300 may be raised here, the writer will be satisfied with nothing less than $500. Expects to have a competent person take charge of her "little one" when "we shall go to housekeeping on the first of April." Then she may be able to stir up a few towns. Hopes that Stephen (S.Foster) will have his throat and lung restored so that he can go to surrounding towns. It would be well for Caroline Weston and Mrs. (Oliver?) Johnson to come with the goods; their experience "will be invaluable." Also the presence of the addressee's younger sisters would be a happy influence on some of the young ladies. Asks about the amount of debt of the American Society.

To Miss Weston (Anne Warren Weston)

Worcester, (Mass.). The writer wonders at the "persistency of the Anti-Slavery workers." Saw Mr. (Samuel) May this morning, and they decided that their call should be published and that the addressee was the one to write it, as well as the advertisements. The best time for the Fair is thought to be the week of the Woman's Rights Convention in October. Hopes to have someone of the addressee's family present as a court of appeal "in case of a difference in judgment."

Worcester (Mass.). Concerns contributions desired for the Liberty Bell. "But my poetry, as you rashly call it, has all turned into prose for the last few years; a good exchange for all, I think." However, the writer encloses verses found "among the scattered waifs of the past." Also sends a sermon on the text "Am I my Brother's Keeper." Further the writer suggests applying for contributions to his friend W.H.Hurlbut of Cambridge and the Rev. David A.Wasson of Groveland, "one of the noblest persons whom I know..."

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

Worcester, (Mass.): The writer reports on some legal aspects of the Anthony Burns case. Doubts that a Massachusetts jury will convict Theodore Parker. Tells about Asa O. Putnam, a police officer, who was driven out of Worcester by a mob for attempting to investigate the Burns case. Refers to the Woman's Rights movement. Says he is going to be tried in a Federal court. "The specialité to which I would like to devote myself for a year or two, had I time would be a History of Woman in Italy, -or modestly, -a Literary History of Italian Women ... Mrs. S. J. Hale in her bulky book has drawn on the Italian sources & told more about them than any one else ..." Tells about his source mat [redacted]. Has been lecturing in Bangor. Says that T. Parker's [redacted] Woman and Her Wishes and Wrentham, Mass.: The writer saw no prospect of doing any good in East Attleboro. Mr. Crane, the clergyman in that part of the town, is allied with the new organization. On Sunday the writer addressed a large audience in the Baptist meeting-house in North Attleboro, which made a very favorable impression. The main body of professing Abolitionists in Attleboro may be counted upon as being right. The writer has sold 4 dozen copies of Slavery As It Is (by T. D. Weld) in the town and has obtained about thirty subscribers to the Cradle of Liberty. Expects to stay in Wrentham until the first of July, then will attend the annual meeting of the Plymouth County Anti-Slavery Society. The formation of a society in West Wrentham is contemplated; the writer will do what he Battle Creek (Mich.). Spent day at Thomas Chandler's, brother of Elizabeth Chandler. Passed hour at Elizabeth's grave, pencilled sonnet on post of railing around it. Details journey from Adrian, describes country and towns. Very dry season, weather clear. Was met at Battle Creek by Richard Merritt, stayed at his father's house. Numerous anti-slavery lecturers have left little impression here on account of bigotry. G. spoke in Friends' meeting-house. Will speak tomorrow in Detroit. Much excitement caused there by S.S. and Abby Kelly Foster. Compares Detroit Free Soil paper to Bennett's Herald. Expects to be slandered and assailed.

«Detroit. The writer is nostalgic for her friends in the Abolition cause. A society of gentlemen in Detroit professes to be interested in the slave, but little is done. The writer's husband is not as interested as formerly. "Since he left Boston he has changed his religious sentiments ... His attention is all enlisted on the side of politics." Reflects on the paradoxes of professed democracy that does not extend to the slave, and the concern of Christians for heathens in foreign lands while they "neglect even to pray for those who are in worse than heathenish darkness." The writer would like to correspond with the addressee, and asks for Anti-Slavery tracts. Is happy to [redacted] that the writer's sister is one of the addressee's pupils.

Detroit. Sallie Holley recently lectured here acceptably. Fosters held several meetings in City Hall, but could enter it on their last night only by breaking lock. Notices of their meetings in Detroit papers "abusive, untruthful and scurrilous." No preparation made for G.; impossible to procure hall. Recounts excursion to Canadian side: visited villages Windsor, home of Henry Bibb, printer of "The Voice of the Fugitive," whose office was destroyed by fire, and Sandwich, with settlement of colored fugitives. G. addressed colored people in Methodist church.

To Bartlett. (Truman Howe Bartlett ?)

[Winona, Minn.] Is glad to hear good reports of him from Wayland. Should be equally glad to have a $10,000 bust himself. Asks about his method of casting. Believes himself to be getting well, slowly. Manages to keep fairly busy. Wrote an article on Winckelman for the May Atlantic. Refers to Bartlett's statue the Benedict. A.L.S. 4p. 7 x 4 3/4 in.

15 Nov.	To Caroline Weston	Vol. 7 No. 76

St. Louis, Mo.: The writer describes her journey to St. Louis, -landscape, incidents, and conversations. Discussed slavery with Mr. James Clark and his mother, the latter considering George Thompson "a great villain." The writer learned the views of a well treated slave woman on the ability of potentially freed slaves to take care of themselves, and about a young slave's belief that "niggers have no souls." A Senator from Illinois denounced Abolition as "shocking and fanatical." The writer likes St. Louis. A German called who turned out to be a strong Abolitionist.

A.L.S. 4 p. 9 3/4 x 7 3/4 in St. Louis, Mo.: The writer thanks the addressee for the gift of a publication ("Right and Wrong in Boston" (??)) She wishes to subscribe to the Liberator, and also asks the addressee to purchase for her George Thompson's lectures and debates in England. Wishes to join the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society. Asks if the addressee has heard of "the shocking and barbarous act" that took place in St. Louis. Will send Elijah Parish Lovejoy's own account of it. The writer tells how, having protested to a lady at the impunity of the mob, she received the reply that "some of the most influential people in town as well as the strates were among the mob." The writer, who does not believe the "singular stories" told about Lovejoy, wishes to get acquainted with him. She opens

St. Louis, Mo.. The writer has settled down in a position as governess in the home of the widow of General Ashley. Mrs. Ashley has a large number of slaves, which her husband in his will wanted to have emancipated. As his name was not on the will, his sisters in Virginia will not consent to the emancipation. The writer found the women of Missouri in "a deplorable state" in respect to slavery. The men "generally willing to acknowledge that slavery was sin...are so dreadful lazy ... if the women were to feel as they ought, I do believe Slavery would soon cease in Missouri."

"St.Louis, Mo.. The writer describes her situation as governess in the home of Mrs. Ashley. "They have great respect for the character and habits of the New England people." Dr.Moss (Mrs. Ashley's father) said of John Quincy Adams that "he was one of the greatest and the very best man in the whole country." Although General Ashley in his will desired his slaves to be set free, his sisters consent only to the emancipation of one man. The writer thinks the people here are aware of the wrong of slavery, "but the giving up of one's property for the sake of one's soul is too great a sacrifice".

Canterbury, N.H.: The writer acknowledges the letter from E. M. Davis, sent by the addressee. Just before the election, New Hampshire is "the state of states for anti-slavery effort". The writer will, nevertheless, go to Pennsylvania with Jane E. Hitchcock. Wants the Pennsylvania campaign postponed until after the election. The writer's throat is affected. Can only speak three or four evenings a week. Thinks it best "for as large a force as can be mustered to go into the same section." Remarks confidentially that "some of our force is not to be trusted alone" and comments on F. Douglass and John M. Spear. The N. H. Board has postponed bringing John R. French's conduct before the public this week on account of Concord, N.H. Is gratified to learn that F. J. favors the Abolitionist cause. Criticises the editorial policy of the Recorder, and praises the Spectator, a rival paper. "In our state, discussion of Abolitionism, was stopped in the New Hampshire Observer, by a mandate from the Monadnock Association." A new Anti-Slavery newspaper has been founded. Thinks that the South's attempts to breed more slaves is inconsistent with their professed fear of servile insurrections. The North should dread being overrun by large numbers of freed negroes. Gives a list of the members of the Jackson family who were born in Boston.

«Concord, (N.H.?). Asks for a dozen copies of The Kidnapped Clergyman, T. D. Weld's Bible argument, and the 1841 Almanac. Asks if Anti-Slavery work will be resumed after the Presidential election. Reports on preparations for the coming State Convention. The Committee of Arrangements depends on N. P. Rogers "to make & settle the preliminaries with brother Garrison for his attendance ...". The N. H. Abolitionists "have done with all geographical lines & landmarks."

[Concord, (N.H.)] "I am writing ... with Rogers' pen, in his parlor, and on a table covered with elegant English books..." Is not well enough to superintend a table at the Anti-Slavery fair. Describes an A-S meeting. New and Old Organization speakers argued about the woman question. A. St.Clair spoke at length. Tells of a conversation with Moses Cortland(?). The New Hampshire Abolitionists do not want N. P. Rogers to go to New York. M. C. continues with her account of the meeting. Says that J. B. Chandler lacks the capacity to express himself readily and clearly. Rogers's "temperament is such that he needs much sympathy ..." Garrison leaves Concord tomorrow.

[Concord, (N.H.)] Says he has told his children about R. D. W. and his friends. Describes his passage in a transatlantic steamer. The food was bad. The trip took 12 1/2 days because of headwinds. "Boston showed small to us, impressed as we were with the magnificence of Dublin, Liverpool and Glasgow." The colored people gave a reception for Garrison and N. P. R. at the Marlborough Chapel. The New Organization welcomed N. Colver and E. Galusha, who claimed that Garrison had gone to the World's Anti-Slavery Convention more to help the women than to free the slaves. N. P. R. describes his return home. Mentions the Presidential election. "Both parties are fawning upon the [redacted] for the favor of slaveholding patronage & suffrage." [redacted] wishes R. D. "Concord, N.H." Concerns the Herald of Freedom. "For my part I hate to touch it, or speak its stolen name." Refers to the "felonious sheet" and N.P. Rogers's expressed wish that others beside him would repel the attack on "Parkerism" and "our friend Tilden of the Unitarian Church." The writer maintains that "our paper appeared two days before his, with the entire sermon of Parker" and two articles, one by the writer, in defence of Tilden. "Rogers and his family continue to treat us with cold neglect...I have deprived my wife and daughter of many comforts on the Herald's account. I ever waived my claim on its behalf."
